

ELENA

My "epiphany" is not actually a single definite moment of ~~the~~ light; it's ~~was~~ spread ~~it~~ across a period of time, "I feel hasn't finished yet."

which

The "different way of seeing ~~in~~ the world" is, in my case, linked to "my way of ~~the~~ perceiving my self".

Everything's started when I went to live on my own. My new wonderful bedroom is, in fact, where I've been discovering my dimension and where I've started to listen to what my ego had been shouting voicelessly for the last five years.

In my ~~the~~ own wonderful "epiphany" is to grow mature in the sense of gaining balance and self-confidence and independence; in other words to become an adult.

Therefore everything surrounding me has been enhanced with different value; I now find myself respecting much more everyone else's ~~the~~ individuality, due to the fact that I've been discovering my own; I honestly appreciate ~~and regard~~ ~~or value~~ the differences among us people, ~~and~~ regarding them as precious; finally I've been learning that every single one of us has got good things to give, simply because I've started being aware of ~~mine~~ my little gifts.